

ROSCOE Educators Program

For first-generation college students majoring in Education

- Creates community and connections for first-generation college students in the School of Education.

Nurtures leadership and research opportunities for first-generation college students entering educational professions.

- Uplifts and celebrates the talents, perspectives, and experiences of first-generation college students.

Components of the ROSCOE Educators program:

- Group cohort meetings with other first-generation college students majoring in Education.
- Faculty mentor meetings.
- Peer mentor meetings.

Resources,
Opportunities,
Support, and Collaboration for Equity
Educators

ROSCOE Educators Program

Who is a ROSCOE Educator?

This identity can be fluid. For the purpose of this program, first-generation college students are students with parents (in whatever way they define parent) who did not complete a four-year college education.

First-generation college students may also include:

- Students whose parents completed a four-year college education in another country beside the United States.
- Students whose parents completed a four-year college education later in life.
- Students with siblings or cousins who complete (or are completing) a four-year college education.
- Students who self-identify as having minimal prior exposure to or knowledge of four-year college experiences like those at TCNJ.

This program is free and open to all Education majors who identify as first-generation college students.

To get become a ROSCOE Educator, email roscoe@tcnj.edu

or

Dr. Pancsofar, program coordinator at pancsofa@tcnj.edu

Say "I want to learn more about the ROSCOE Educators program" and we will help you get started!

Contact Information

Dr. Nadya Pancsofar,
ROSCOE Educators
program coordinator
pancsofa@tcnj.edu
roscoe@tcnj.edu
<https://education.tcnj.edu/roscoe-educators-program/>